HEARTWORM DISEASE¹

- Causes irreversible damage to the heart and arteries
- Treatment is extremely difficult, time-intensive and costly
- Symptoms include coughing, sluggishness and difficulty breathing, although some dogs may not show signs at all

HOOKWORMS²

- Transmitted by ingesting infected soil or feces, or by microscopic larvae penetrating your dog's skin
- Symptoms may include bloody diarrhea, weight loss and anemia

ROUNDWORMS³

- Nearly all puppies get roundworms from their mother, but they are also a threat to adult dogs
- Symptoms may include diarrhea, vomiting, stunted growth and bloated belly

WHIPWORMS⁴

- Contracted when dogs ingest infective eggs, often by licking contaminated soil off their paws
- Symptoms may include bloody diarrhea, dehydration and weight loss

TAPEWORMS⁵

- Typically acquired by ingesting tapeworm larvae residing in a host, such as a rabbit, rodent or flea
- Can go undetected, but dogs may scoot their rear ends on the ground to relieve irritation
- Often discovered when white- or cream-colored worm segments show up in feces or under the tail
